

HÀ MINH

Such is my very queer, queer experience – one that has given me the courage to venture into unknown realms, both physically and mentally, to become the artist I am today.

Being an artist, in turn, has gifted me a rich and fruitful life, filled with mind-exhilarating events and open-hearted, passionate people devoted to their art and craft. It has taught me to love deeply and sensually: I now make love to the world – to the grass, the tree, the fallen leaf – with all of my body as an absorbent vessel, my senses as guide.

My femininity is the river that runs from my grandfather's mountains in the northern highlands of Vietnam, across oceans to new lands – now Cologne, Germany.

I, a trans woman artist, shall continue to make love to Mother Earth's offerings with all of my senses. The world and I shall create fertile offspring in art.

My art is my legacy, my life, my love – where I channel my femininity endlessly, and everything curious and queer in between all the binaries.
